

Power of positives

Last week a co-worker surprised me with a very cool gift. Namely a new coffee mug with my own name and accompanying logo on it. It reminded me straight away on the positive impact that such gestures can have. You can make someones day simply by complimenting them. Or surprise someone with a gift. Same is true for letting people know they are valued and showing a genuine appreciation for the labour that they put in. Thanx Martin for reminding me again.
